The Sydney internship program, organized by the University of Sydney, offers students the opportunity to gain professional experience by interning at small or medium-sized company or NGOs/NPSs in Sydney. Previous fellows placed in Sydney developed and implemented social media campaigns, produced content for webpages, worked with Google Analytics or in a non-profit organization or company. Salesforce, performed data analysis, organized events or assisted in research projects.

The University of Sydney staff will support fellows throughout the Spring semester to finalize their placement.

Students will be accommodated at the “Urban Nest”, a dorm for internship participants, located in downtown Sydney.

Students participating in the internship program will also enroll in a 3-credit class at the University of Sydney that is a required component of the Sydney Internship Program. The three credits will transfer back to Cornell.

The University of Sydney organizes a welcome event the weekend before the internship start date and activities throughout the summer. All Sydney internships will start on June 5 and students should plan to arrive by the end of the previous week to move into accommodation and participate in the welcome/orientation.

Fun fact: In Australia, winter begins at the start of June and finishes at the end of August!
